

Confronting the energy crisis: changing behaviours to reduce energy consumption

Households react to prices as well as habits, expectations and biases. Energy saving measures should factor in these behavioural aspects.